

Indiana Environmental Health Membership Benefits:

◆ Registration fees for the annual spring and fall educational conferences are lower for members. These Conferences provide timely information on a broad spectrum of public and environmental health issues. Spring Conference is a one day educational meeting with various topics and speakers, and Fall Conference encompasses 2 ½ days of education, networking, vendor presentations and tours.

◆ "Journal of Environmental Health", the official publication of the Association, is published three (3) times per year. It contains articles on current environmental issues, and IEHA news and events. It is available to members from IEHA's website at www.iehaind.org. It is also sent out to members through an email link for convenient viewing.

◆ Chapter meetings offer opportunities to network with peers and gain knowledge through the speakers and tours provided. Chapter groups are known also to take on community projects. There are 8 Chapters in the IEHA.

◆ IEHA Membership promotes and supports the registration, continuing education and training of professionals.

◆ Our membership is provided with scholarship assistance from the COPED fund upon application, to help support members who elect to participate in continuing education and training.

◆ IEHA is affiliated with the National Environmental Health Association, Inc. (NEHA) and the International Association for Food Protection (IAFP) to ensure and support national professional standards
